Today

Dead 30 Minutes.
Birds Sing on Sunday.
The Little Man.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

MICHAEL J. HINCH, 18 years old, touched a live wire carrying 5,000 volts and, according to doctors, was "dead for half an hour." Quick action by firemen brought the boy back to life.

At first his mind wandered. Then he recognized friends, knew his own name, who he was and what he had been doing in the previous 15 years.

The question arises, does the same thing happen to all of us, after we have been dead a long time, perhaps, as one earnest clergyman suggests, as long as a billion years, waiting for the world to end and Gabriel to summon us?

PITTSBURGH judges decide that Pittsburgh's symphony society may give concerts on Sunday, although the Allegheny County Sabbath association calls the concerts wicked.

What about birds that sing on Sunday, and could not sing if the Lord did not approve? Are they wicked?

BANKING gentlemen tell the little man not to invest in stocks or even bonds, but put his money in savings banks.

That reminds you of the little boy who didn't want his sister to kill the big blue bottle fly. He wanted to kill it.

If bonds and stocks, industrial and others, yield profits good for big concerns, why not give the little man a chance?

HOW many millions have Frederick H. Becker, of the Metropolitan Life company; President Mitchell, of the National City bank; President Gianfrini of the Bank of Italy and Bancitally corporation, and dozens of others made for their stockholders by wise bond and stock investments?

Mr. Mitchell made millions for his bank, buying government bonds below par, when little people were unloading them.

Why not a committee of honest financiers to tell the little people what to buy, safely?

GREAT BRITAIN is "watching the United States carefully, suspecting an American challenge for world supremacy."

This country doesn't particularly want any world supremacy. Plenty of room, plenty to do on these two American continents. But if anybody must have world supremacy, why not the United States? This is a real empire and will last.

THE Emperor of Japan sets an example in economy—carries a $5 watch, cultivates his own rice field. That would surprise his great-grandfather. That Mikado, by lifting a finger, could chop off anybody's head, and he did.

JAPANESE discover that western methods bring in western agitation. Politics in Japan is divided into eight parties, now including four labor parties. That calls for thought. Here we haven't even one labor party, and worry about Bolshevism.

BLEAK JUDGMENT DAY FOR SLAYER

Killer "Fox" Hickman Bases Life Hope on His "Insanity" Plea

Long Shadow of Hangman's Gibbet Reaches Cell of Youth Who Murdered Little Marion Parker.

BURDEN RESTS UPON DEFENSE

Ten Witnesses and 36 Depositions His Hopes of Escaping Death on Gallows in California.

By Arthur L. Marek.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 25.—The bleak day of judgment for William Edward Hickman has come.

Already the long shadow of the hangman's gibbet reached his cell as the remorseless youth who stole and slaughtered little Marion Parker awaited his hour for trial for the kidnapping and murder of the 12-year-old school girl.

For the fate of the "killer fox" hangs by a slender thread. His slim chance of escaping death on the gallows is marked by the thin line which forms the border between sanity and insanity and yet indelibly divides right from wrong.

By his plea of "not guilty by reason of insanity" to the kidnapping and murder charges, Hickman stands convicted of the atrocious crime.

Must Prove Insanity.

His sole defense is that he says he was crazy and did not know the difference between right and wrong when he lured Marion Parker away from her school and tortured her to death.

Since the law presumes every man to be sane, the burden of proving Hickman's mental unbalance rests upon the defense.

This reverses the ordinary procedure of murder trials and Hickman, in order to save his neck from the noose, must at the outset prove by preponderance of evidence that he was insane at the time he kidnapped and murdered his little victim.

Four Defense Alienists.

Among the ten witnesses who are ready to testify that Hickman was sane and insane are four defense alienists who have examined him during the five weeks that he has been caged in his steel cell in the Los Angeles county jail.

Arrayed against the defense expert witnesses are seven alienists retained by the state to observe Hickman's every mental reaction, who are ready to take the stand and swear that the murderer of Marion Parker was in his right mind when he butchered his little captive.

The depositions, obtained by chief defense counsel, Jerome Walsh, from Hickman's former associates in Kansas and Arkansas and comprising some 500 pages of typewritten questions and answers, complete the defense testimony.

Waiting to tear down the insanity defense as soon as it is built is an overwhelming array of 47 state witnesses, including the seven prosecution alienists.

Victim's Father To Testify.

Among the witnesses subpoenaed by the state is Perry M. Parker, father of the slain Marion, who, in good faith, paid the "fox" $1,500 ransom for the mutilated body of what was once his living child.

Parker's presence at the trial was made necessary because he is to be Hickman's chief accuser. Marion's mother, her twin sister, Marjorie, and her 26-year-old brother, Perry W. Parker, have been excused and have expressed the desire to remain away from the court room.

Save Two Boats as Gale Hits New York

Jersey Central Lighter Sinks After Menacing Hundreds Aboard Ferryboats it Grazed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Only heroic efforts of coast guardsmen today saved two government harbor boats from sinking off the Battery in the most violent land and sea-storm that has struck the city and harbor this year.

The huge ward broke loose from its moorings and for six hours pounded against the Haritan, a sister craft, before the coast guard crews finally succeeded in towing it to a pier.

A Jersey Central lighter menaced the lives of hundreds of passengers aboard two ferryboats it grazed and then suddenly listed and sank off the Thirty-ninth street ferry slip in the North river.

Several other vessels were believed to have been sunk in the 70-mile gale that raged over the harbor and the Atlantic before day break.

OLD BURFORD PLANT LEASED BY PITTSBURGH MANUFACTURER

Porcelier Company to Make Lighting Equipment.

EMPLOYS 40 MEN

Lessee Given Option of Purchase After One Year.

The Porcelier Manufacturing company, Pittsburgh, makers of porcelain lighting equipment, today obtained a one year lease on the No. 2 plant of the Dresden Pottery company, formerly known as the old Burford shop, which will be placed in operation on or about March 1.

William Barker Manager. The company will employ between 35 and 40 pottery workers at the start-off, but expects to increase its force. William Barker, formerly of East Liverpool, will be general manager of the plant.

Deal for the lease of the plant, which also provides for purchase at the end of the year, was negotiated by the industrial committee of the Chamber of Commerce, made up of J. T. Croxall, chairman; T. H. Fisher, T. V. Milligan, W. H. Vordrey, S. C. Williams, C. W. Hendershot and C. C. Ashbaugh. The plant is owned by Patrick McNicol, treasurer of the Dresden company, who acquired the holdings after they had been sold at sheriff's sale.

The Porcelier company manufactures porcelain lighting fixtures for commercial, residential and industrial purposes. The porcelains, as the fixtures are called, are superior to the metal fixtures, as they are sanitary, shock-proof, decorative and are moderately priced. They are made of high grade china porcelain and are guaranteed never to chip, tarnish or craze. They are produced in a variety of designs and decorations harmonizing with color schemes in modern homes.

The Davidson Porcelain company, of Chester, it is said, has been producing the porcelain parts for the fixtures, the decorations being added and the fixture assembled at Pittsburgh.

Seven-Kiln Plant. The Burford plant has seven bisque and glaze and four decorating kilns. The porcelier company will use two kilns at the beginning but hope to eventually make use of the entire capacity. The porceliers are fired in the shop is equipped with 10 jiggers, several of which will be utilized by the company. The porceliers are fired as well as cast and dry pressed.

Work on placing the plant in readiness for operation was started today. While the shop has been idle for more than a year, all machinery is o. k.

Plant Erected in 1904.

The Burford plant was built and operated by the late Oliver, George and Robert Burford, who retired in 1904 when the factory was sold to the Standard Pottery company. Most of the old plant, of frame construction, was razed and replaced with brick buildings. The Standard company sold the shop to the Pottery Co-Operative company, which later became the Dresden Pottery company, in 1920. The Dresden company suspended operations in Greenfield, 1924.

The plant, at the corner of Smith street and Green line, consists of one, two and three-story brick buildings. One section is four stories high. It is connected with a railroad siding to the Horn switch.

The Porcelier company, whose Pittsburgh lease expires May 1, is owned by three men. The operators viewed several available factories before choosing the Dresden company's No. 2 plant.

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

In all history, no Indian was ever known to have constipation. Nor need you. He chewed the bark of a tree called cascara. Today, we have the candy cascaret.

Cascaring the bowels never forms a laxative habit. It already formed, an occasional cascaret will usually break the habit. For cascara strengthens the muscular walls of the bowels, and their need of any aid at all grows constantly less. What other cathartic has this characteristic? The writer knows of none.

An evacuation brought gently about by cascara will, nine times in ten, be followed by full functioning of the bowels on the morrow—and for days after. For there is no REACTION as with sickening salts, or any of the man-made purgatives that go through one's system like a bullet.

Physicians tell us cascara is the ideal laxative—and the tongue tells us candy cascarets are its ideal form. At least a million people know this; what a pity there are any who don't! Especially parents; because children love to take a cascaret. After which, for day-end, the bowels will be seen to work of their own accord.

The only habit from cascara is that of regularity! Cascarets tone and train the bowels. But at the first sign of returning sluggishness, another cascaret is as effective as the first.

There isn't a druggist who hasn't cascarets, so WHY experiment with laxatives?

CASCARETS
They Work While You Sleep!

BRIDGE MEASURE IS INTRODUCED

Consent of congress for the construction of a toll bridge across the Ohio river from New Martinsville to Duffy, O., is sought in a bill introduced Tuesday by Senator M. M. Neely and Congressman Carl G. Bachmann.

The project is being sponsored by the Kiwanis club of New Martinsville. The movement got under way about a month ago and is still in a stage of formation. As soon as permission of congress is secured for the construction of the bridge the river front will be surveyed for the most ideal site for the bridge.

Although the company owning the bridge will be known as the Ohio Bridge company the corporation has not as yet been formed. Steps of incorporation will be taken as soon as congress approves.

The bridge will be at a point suitable to navigation at or near New Martinsville, and a point opposite, at or near Duffy, O.

Construction of such a bridge will open up the territory between Wheeling and Parkersburg to the east and west. The only means of crossing the Ohio river between these two points is by ferry boat.

The bridge will bring together such towns as Sardis, Friendly, Shilo, New Martinsville, Sistersville, Paden City, Proctor and other towns on the West Virginia side of the river.

Monroe county, Ohio, is constructing a good road between Woodsfield and Sardis, O. In Wetzel county a hard surfaced road is being constructed connecting New Martinsville with the Clarksburg and Fairmont districts.

FOREIGN TREATY FIGURES IN SUIT

Exercise of provisions in a treaty existing between the United States and Italy is attempted in suits pending in United States district court to collect compensation alleged due because of the death of 10 Italians in the disaster which took 119 lives in the Benwood mine of the Wheeling Steel corporation in 1924.

A demurrer filed by the Wheeling Steel corporation as defendant in the actions was re-argued before Judge W. E. Baker in court Tuesday. The initial arguments on the demurrer were submitted many months ago, and will be presented again upon request of the court.

Enrico Lannarilli and nine other Italians, all residing in Italy, are the plaintiffs in the suits, each for $10,000, or a total of $100,000. The state compensation law bars claims of non-residents, and the plaintiffs seek to participate in compensation benefits through treaty provisions, and are suing through the Italian consul at Washington.

The decision of Judge Baker in the case will establish a precedent in such litigation. A. Raymond Gordon, Charleston attorney, is plaintiff counsel, while State Senator Wright Huges and Attorney J. E. Brues will appear for the defendant corporation.

During the business session, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Harding Connelly; secretary, Mrs. Pearl Butler; treasurer, Mrs. Elmer Dawson.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Eva Kibbie. The table, at which covers were arranged for 15 guests, was decorated with Valentine novelties.

Miss Mary Letnox of Parkersburg, W. Va., was a guest.

In two weeks the club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Frank Kennedy in John street.

COMPLACENT CHURCHMEN HIT BY EVANGELIST

Rev. J. B. Edie in Orchard Grove Avenue Pulpit.

"HALTING" TOPIC

Sunday School Night
Will be Observed
This Evening.

That many churchmen lack conversion and are harder to touch with Christian truths than sinners without the fold with asserted by Rev. Joseph B. Edie, Youngstown, in a discourse at the Orchard Grove Methodist Episcopal revival last evening. His subject was "Halting" or "Being Undecided."

"Complacent church members, compromising with the world and fearful of earthly opinion, need to be made so personally miserable and troubled that they will fully and openly surrender to God, return to His altar and by consecrated lives make His service the first always in their lives," he said.

The invocation and consecration prayers were made by Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the Baptist church. Accompanied by Mrs. A. M. Burns, Mrs. Fred Neiser and Clifford Smith sang "He Will Give You Rest."

"It was a day of visitation for Rev. Mr. Edie and myself," declared Rev. C. B. Conn, the pastor, who told of calls to shut-in and others.

It was "Community Night" of the revival, and many, despite the rain, attended. Pupils and teachers will assemble together in celebration of "Sunday School Night" this evening.

Rev. Mr. Edie prefaced his sermon with reference to a unique ministerial meeting arranged by Dr. Hudnutt, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Youngstown recently, which culminated with the mutual partaking of communion together by all assembled clergymen that included Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Congregationalists, Episcopalians, Lutherans, Friends and others, some twelve or more denominations in all. "And why should such a departure not obtain?" he queried. "It has been too long delayed in my opinion. For, after all, we serve one Lord and Master."

AMUSEMENTS

BEERY, HATTON
IN COMEDY HIT

Two Americans disguised as Scotch highlanders enlist as aviators at a French airport, and are sentenced to death as German spies.

Only Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton could appear to advantage in such a ridiculous situation. And they do so in "Now We're in the Air," the Paramount comedy now at the Ceramic theatre.

Here is a comedy that has everything, good photography, good direction, capable stars, and most remarkable, a good story.

It is a good thing for the theatre that the laughs in this nonsense opera are so evenly spaced. Hysteria, with possible serious consequences to the patrons, would be the result if they were not. Beery and Hatton have done the impossible and topped all their previous successes, "Behind the Front," "We're in the Navy Now," and "Firemen, Save My Child."

STORY OF VENICE
AT AMERICAN

Constance Talmadge has a colorful story of Venice, that enchanting city of canals where romance seems to beckon from the dancing splashes of light from each glowing window, at the American theatre today in "Venus of Venice."

It is a story of a hoydenish gypsy of the waterways whose capacity for thievery and mischief is seemingly limitless; a madcap feared by police and citizenry alike, yet charming and lovable withal. And the added complication of an impulsive American artist who attempts to remould her sorry scheme of things, with a most surprising result.

BLACKSTONE MAN OF PERSONALITY

Blackstone, the magician, now at the Strand theatre, has a remarkable personality. His great success in the field of magic is probably as much due to his dynamic quality as his incomparable skill as a conjurer.

From time immemorial, famous men have been gifted with magnetic personalities. Napoleon, Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt were all endowed with a supermagnetism that commanded recognition and gradual elevation to positions of eminence. Every great actor and every great magician has had this divine art of compelling magnetism. Irving, Booth, Mansfield, Hermann and Kellar all were possessed of outstanding and dazzling personalities — personalities whose dynamic force was so intense as to have strong physical quality.

Blackstone's program contains innumerable thrills, surprises and laughs.

Twenty persons, including a number of pretty girls, compose the season's company.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bitten feet—colds of all sorts.

East Liverpool — America's Pottery Center.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 27, 1928.

Made-In-America Gift

The last word in pottery ware is probably the phrase which should be used in describing the 2,000-piece dinner service set, embodying all that commends the East Liverpool district's famous product, which will adorn the tables tonight, when 225 guests are seated for the annual Chamber of Commerce meeting.

It is a made-in-America gift, presented to the East Liverpool unit of business and professional men and women by W. E. Wells, national councillor of the chamber and chairman of the labor committee of the United States Pottery Association, and represents the products of four ceramic plants—Homer Laughlin, Newell, W. Va.; Shenango, New Castle, Pa.; Onondaga, Syracuse, N. Y., and Scammell, Trenton, N. J.

The gift, the fulfillment of a promise made at the 1927 dinner by the donor, who for many years has been accorded the honor of toastmaster at these functions, consists of costly service plates and ivory and white ware, with an under-glaze decoration which is unusual for American-made semi-porcelain. The decoration, design, made especially, was contributed by Rudolph Gaertner.

Seldom, if ever, has as much attention been given to a pottery order, and as a result Chamber of Commerce dinner tables shall be graced with American dinnerware that compares favorably with the best product of any foreign manufacturer. And the gift silences critics on the quality of ware manufactured in the United States.

It is concrete evidence of the fact that American pottery manufacturers have no reason to fear any foreign competitor if all things are equal. And to equalize the situation, the domestic manufacturer must have tariff safeguards against the cheap labor of Europe.

Missionaries In China

Attention is called to China again by the foreign mission board of the Congregational church, which wants American gunboats recalled from Chinese waters.

The church authorities say they are willing to run the risk of continuing their missionary work without the protection of warships, and will neither seek nor accept anything for damages to their property or personnel under present conditions. They want their missionary work in all foreign countries entirely dissociated from military protection.

"The board," they say, "desires the Chinese people to understand that its work is done absolutely in a spirit of good will."

This does credit to the missionaries and their associates. It is doubtless in such a spirit, too, that the most effective Christian missionary work can be done. The spirit of Christianity is opposed to force.

An era of peace seems to have descended on China, going far to justify this attitude from a practical standpoint. It has long been evident, too, that the disturbances of last spring and summer were greatly exaggerated. There is no evidence of a real anti-foreigner spirit in China. Our people generally—traders, tourists and others—could probably get along there as well as the missionaries, without military protection, if it were made clear that the American policy toward China was one of unqualified good will.

Canada And Pan-America

A member of the Chilean delegation at Havana announced the other day that his country would like to see Canada enter the Pan-American Union, and if the matter ever came before the Union, Chile would vote for it. It would be a benefit to all the other American countries, he declared, to have the Dominion participate in their work.

That is probably true. Canada usually shows a pretty level head in national and international affairs. Canada is a characteristically American country, with her interests centering primarily in this hemisphere, despite her connection with Great Britain. Her autonomy and virtual independence have been recognized by the League of Nations in giving her a separate membership at Geneva, and by the United States in establishing separate diplomatic relations with her, sending a minister to Ottawa and receiving one at Washington. Canadian rights, too, are doubtless affected by the deliberations of the other American countries.

If Canada chooses to remain outside of the Union, that is her privilege. If she wants to come in, her friend and immediate neighbor, Uncle Sam, should be the last to object.

Long Life For Middle-Aged

"Within 300 years," says a widely read editorial writer, "the average life has increased from 30 to 60 years, but a man of 60 has very little better chance of life than a man of that age 100 years ago."

Such statements have been made frequently of late, but are not strictly accurate. It is true that the insurance tables do not show much more "expectancy of life" for the man in his fifties than they did many years ago. The middle-aged man must still pay a stiff premium rate on his life policy, compared with that paid by the young men, and there is still a heavy mortality among the middle-aged.

Nevertheless the middle-aged person has a far better chance at long life than he would have had in former generations—if only he takes care of himself according to health standards now well known, and uses medical resources now available.

The middle-aged do not have to die of degenerative diseases. Most of those who do so could live to a ripe old age, doing effective work and enjoying life far beyond the customary years of efficiency, if they would merely do what the doctors tell them, and give the medical profession a chance to do for them the innumerable things it can do which have only been possible in recent years.

Let the man in his forties or fifties submit to a thorough overhauling by a competent physician, and repeat the procedure every year or two. Let him straighten out any kinks found in his system, and adopt better habits of diet, exercise, work and play. Then the middle-aged may benefit in prolonged years almost as much as children do from the care given them.

When is the senate going to install that broadcasting outfit? Some of the recent debates there sound more interesting than the radio stuff we're getting.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Not all the ladies trundled to police stations after sobbing, shrieking or swooning. There are some with a brittle arrogance that disturbs even the unruffled calm of the desk captain as well as his hard-boiled lieutenants.

These are the types expensively furred, whose wrists dazzle with jeweled bracelets and who reek of expensive perfume. In the underworld, they are known as "Ladies of the Mob." They are experienced in police court formalities and know the value of a magnificent bluff. They often laugh at their questioners.

They are not so often criminals as associates of criminals. They are the creatures upon whom crooks after successful coups spend the spoils. They may refuse to be questioned until their lawyer, or "mouth piece," arrives. And they know it will only be a short time until they are "sprung" by a professional bondsman.

These women live rather handsomely and acquire a certain social veneer, but they can lapse into the argot of the crook in a flash. Their tongues have a venomous lash and then they are in league with that "invisible power" that has sent many inquisitive policemen to outlying stations.

They are not consorts of petty criminals. They are the reigning mistresses of the so-called master minds and are usually brought before a police official who is responding to that age-old credo, "Cherchez la femme!"

They are reputed to have a staunch fidelity until their man is trapped and "sent up the river." Then the affair is ended. After all ladies must live. Once entangled, crooks cannot ditch them for these ladies have information that is a confidant. He has that human quality of not being able to keep a secret entirely. And 90 per cent of those are eventually undone because of this weakness.

A certain man-about-town has a large glass of orange juice brought to his table every morning, but he is a victim of the overwhelming force of habit. He cannot drink it sitting down. He has to stand up in an "Here's how!" attitude.

There is the story of a man toiling painfully along the sidewalk in shoes obviously too small. His face was screwed up in an expression of agony. A friend stopped and inquired why he tortured himself thus. "I know," he moaned, "I should wear No. 9 shoes and these are No. 7s. But my wife ran away with a gigolo, my daughter smokes opium, my son is in jail for bootlegging and I wear these so I can go home in the evening, take them off and be comfortable awhile."

Another yarn concerns a girl at vaudeville inquiring of her escort at the finish of an operatic selection: "What opera was that?" "Metropolitan," he responded brightly.

It is not depressing news that bootleggers catering to the very rich are worried. Sales have taken a decided slump. A water wagon notion—and wouldn't it be amusing if it became a fad?—has hit those who can pay fancy prices. The stuff is getting too poisonous. Or the drinkers are growing too weak.

A spy tells me that while many imported perfume businesses are reputable, many more are not. Those not on the level are able to secure alcohol for manufacturing purposes, the most of which is diverted to bootlegging and thus many pseudo-manufacturers are growing to be multi-millionaires. "The perfume business," he said, "is the biggest support of the bootleg industry." Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Your Health

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Everybody loves a baby. The climax of John Erskine's new book was the birth of the baby. The crowning event in any new home is the arrival of the baby.

I don't happen to have the figures for the whole country, but in New York City, 140,000 are born every year. Placed shoulder to shoulder, they would make a line twenty miles long. Some babies!

The hope of the nation lies in the babies. They will determine the fate of the human race. Upon their good health, physical development and growth depends their mental development. Upon that depends the quality of citizenship.

The sort of health a baby will have depends on the mother and her intelligent supervision of the child's welfare. If she does her full duty the baby will thrive. She will do her full duty when she knows what is best for the infant.

What are some of the simple ailments with which she must deal? The first one is constipation. If the baby is breast-fed it is surprising how the child shares the ailments of the mother. Constipation in the mother is likely to be associated with constipation in the baby.

Wrong feeding on the part of the mother has much to do with the development of this symptom. She must guard her own health, not alone in this particular matter, but in all things.

There is nothing selfish in doing this. She must not make a slave of herself and neglect the out-of-door exercise, recreation and entertainment which are good for her health. She must have good health if the baby is to have it. When she does for herself, then, she does for her offspring.

Perhaps the mother is eating too much fat, or is not drinking sufficient quantities of water. These are two things to keep in mind. They have much to do with constipation.

Irregular feeding is an important factor in the production of constipation in the infant. Diarrhea, too, may be caused by the same fault. Or, there may be an alternation of diarrhea and constipation.

In a bottle-fed baby the constipation may be speedily overcome by adding to the feedings some of the right brand of gelatin. A level teaspoonful to a bottle will go far toward correcting the tendency to constipation. It is worth while to remember and try this simple remedy.

The mother should not take castor oil, salts and other cathartics. They are habit forming and, in the long run, harmful.

Frequent vomiting is another symptom detrimental to the baby. There may be such loss of milk as actually to deprive the child of needed nourishment.

This may come from over-feeding, or from too rapid feeding. Struggling to swallow the food there may be taken with it a lot of air. This causes distention of the stomach and vomiting results.

The young mother must learn how to hold the baby so that it will take the food without undue effort and at a rate of supply that will not cause swallowing of air.

Simply because the baby cries is no reason to give it food. The feedings should be at regular intervals, as the doctor will explain. Give a little water now and then. It will satisfy the infant's needs and not cause its little stomach to rebel against an oversupply of food.

Attention to these matters will help your precious baby to thrive. That will make you happy.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

M. S. O.—What diet do you advise for reducing?
A.—Eat sparingly of starches, sugars and fats. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

M. S. Q.—How can I fatten my legs?
A.—By gaining weight in general, your legs will probably fill out. Exercises such as walking, running, skating and dancing will develop the muscles. Particulars in regard to gaining weight will be sent upon receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

A. R. Q.—What is the schedule for figuring the blood pressure? How much may the blood pressure vary either way before it is dangerous?
A.—Varies normally for an adult from 115 to 145, depending upon the patient's age. May be ten or fifteen points above or below without causing anxiety—however it should have careful attention. Follow your doctor's advice.

Will History Repeat Itself?

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25.—Twenty years ago the contest for the Republican presidential nomination developed into a race of one man against the field, or, rather, of the field against one man. Political observers whose memories date back that far are now of the belief that history will repeat itself in 1928. In support of their belief they point to numerous close parallels between the campaign of 1908 and that of the present year in so far as it has progressed.

William Howard Taft, of Ohio, was the candidate in 1908 against whom the other candidates combined in an effort to defeat him and let the nomination drop where it might. The leading contenders were Philander C. Knox, of Pennsylvania; Charles Warren Fairbanks, of Indiana; and Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, and they became known as the "Allies" in the political news of the day.

Herbert C. Hoover, of California, concededly the leading candidate for the Republican nomination in 1928, is the one who is drawing fire from all the other candidates and the one against whom a combination of some sort seems to be in the forming. The leading contenders are Lowell and Daves, of Illinois; Willis, of Ohio; Curtis, of Kansas; and Norris, of Nebraska; with a long array of lesser lights any one of whom will be "available" in case of an emergency call.

The parallels between the Taft and Hoover candidacies are striking. Taft was a member of the Cabinet of President Roosevelt who had said that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself. Hoover is a member of the Cabinet of President Coolidge who has said that he does not choose to run in 1928. Taft was the Roosevelt candidate for the succession. Hoover is said to be Coolidge's choice and developments to date apparently support that claim. At least there has been no disclaimer from the White House. Efforts were made to defeat Taft by insistence that Roosevelt would be renominated in spite of himself. Similarly it is being attempted through persistent talk of drafting Coolidge to check the Hoover movement.

Republicanism of Both Assailed. Taft's Republicanism was assailed; Hoover's is being questioned. And just as Taft was made the target for a series of attacks, some almost venomous in character, so Hoover is being attacked in the present campaign and there is no telling how bitter these assaults may become before the contest is over.

In the matter of Republicanism, no one had the temerity to assert that Taft was not a Republican. He had been born in the party fold, so to speak, and in his youth had been elected to office on the Republican ticket in Hamilton County, Ohio. But he had not been an active party man and campaigner—his service on the Federal bench and his absence from the country as governor-general of the Philippines had precluded that—and his party loyalty was questioned because of a speech he made at Akron, Ohio, in 1905, in which he said that if he could be at home to vote that year he would vote against the Cox machine candidates in Cincinnati and Hamilton County. That speech was credited with having much to do with the Democratic state victory in Ohio that year.

Hoover's Republicanism is not merely being assailed. The charge is widely circulated that he is not a member of the Republican party, but has declared himself in because he thinks he sees a good chance thereby to grab off the Presidency, the implication being that he would be a Democrat if he thought that would land him in the White House.

Serious If Not Explicable.

These indictments would be regarded as serious by Hoover's friends if they were not susceptible of explanation. It is true that Hoover did appeal for the election of a Democratic Congress in 1918, but his supporters point out that he did so solely because the United States was in the midst of a great war and he believed that President Woodrow Wilson, as commander-in-chief, should have the backing of a Congress controlled by men of his own party.

Hoover believed that winning the war was more important than partisanship at that critical juncture in national affairs. He did not urge the election of Democrats because they were Democrats or because of what they stood for politically, his friends say. He was not even sure that they would help win the war, but because Woodrow Wilson appealed for a Democratic Congress on the ground that it would aid him, Hoover said that the President ought to have every kind of support he asked for, and accordingly he joined in the appeal. And say the Hooverites, if that be true, why the Republican Party, make the most of it!

ONCE OVER

By J. J. Mundy.

What Do You Do for Your Friends? At times you wonder why so few persons appear to be more than slightly interested in you.

You wish you had more dependable friends. But do you deserve more than acquaintances?

Isn't it a fact that you have avoided becoming better acquainted with people because you have feared that you might be expected to show your friendship in deeds?

You don't want to be called on to help out. You would like the benefit and the satisfaction of good friends, but you are unwilling to accept any responsibility so far as your friends are concerned.

Friendship is not a one-sided affair. It cannot be one-sided and be strong and balanced.

There must be mutual confidence in a desire for a good friend.

There must be willingness to assume whatever the friendship entails. Too many demand much and give little in a supposed friendship.

RIGHT ANGLES

By Alexander Cairns

CHISEL IN HAND.

If you never in childhood attended a little one-room country school, I commiserate you. And if you ever taught one, I congratulate you. Thank destiny, I did both.

And how wonderfully the hours of the week converged toward Friday afternoon, when the usual schedule of study and classes was set aside and we had "exercises" and "said pieces."

And how many of the oft-recurring "pieces" we can remember. "Life Sculpture," for instance, by Doane, was the favorite. Over the ears to us came the echoes of those words: "Chisel in hand a sculptor boy With his marble block before him;

And his eyes lit up with a smile of joy.

As an angel dream passed o'er him.

It is excellent doctrine for the child anywhere from two to toothless, that we are all sculptors of our own lives. The word "character" means carved out.

That definition is a good antidote for the fable of heredity.

Any mechanistic conception of the universe which has the tendency to paralyze us is not very conducive to life sculpture.

Each man is the Phidias of his own character.

And it is glorious to get the feel of the chisel in one's own fist, to know that every mallet stroke of word or deed will make or mar the beauty of the product.

Possibly the best reading for formative years is biography, because it shows how the great masters of life handled the chisel. Franklin, it seems, never made a mistake.

And it is a red-blooded, he-man's game, without alibi or subterfuge or buck-passing.

We are all turned loose in the atelier of life with a commission to carve out a beautiful character.

Ours is the praise or blame for the result.

Careless Washing

Spoils Children's Hair

Any child can have beautiful hair—healthy and luxuriant. It is simply a matter of shampooing.

Proper shampooing makes the hair soft and silky. It brings out all the real life and lustre, all the natural wave and color, and leaves it fresh looking, glossy and bright.

While children's hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, fine young hair and tender scalps cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why thoughtful mothers everywhere, now use Mulsified Coconut Oil Shampoo. This clear, pure and entirely greaseless product brings out all the real beauty of the hair and cannot possibly injure.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather which cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust and dirt.

It leaves the hair soft and easy to manage and makes it fairly sparkle with new life, gloss and lustre.

You can get Mulsified Coconut Oil Shampoo at any drug store.

A four-ounce bottle lasts for months.

Do menstrual periods make you stay-at-home certain days of every month? They needn't! And you need not endure one pang of pain if you'll accept its assistance of Midol.

Midol makes menstruation an incident! No pain, not even discomfort, is necessary now. Women who used to have the very hardest time have found this to be true. Midol is a marvelous product; the work of specialists. It is not a narcotic. But it stops all pain in five to seven minutes. Taken in time, the pain never starts. All drugstores have Midol, in aluminum packet case for fifty cents, so it's folly to suffer!

Embarrassed by Dishpan Hands

Ill at ease . . . at her own dinner table

"DICK'S 'chief' was pleasant and friendly, but I knew that he had the fastidious standards of a man of culture and wealth.

"I was so eager, as Dick's wife, to meet those standards.

"It was a little thing which upset me—just the merest change of expression on his face . . . I was pouring coffee, and for the fraction of a second his glance had rested on my hands.

"I knew my hands looked red and rough from housework and dishes—and knew he had noticed them . . . I became self-conscious, ill at ease.

"Foolishly, perhaps, I felt the evening was a failure.

"Now I know how NEEDLESS it was. Since I have been using Lux for dishwashing, for all cleansing my hands have to do—my hands are soft and smooth and white. I'm never embarrassed now by 'dishpan' hands."

So many soaps—whether flakes, chips, or cakes—contain harmful alkali which makes the skin harsh.

There is NO injurious alkali in Lux! Made by a remarkable process—Lux actually SOOTHES the skin, leaves it a little whiter and softer than before.*

Dissolving instantly, before you ever put your hands in, a little Lux foams up into a mountain of suds—so rich, so cleansing, the dishes seem almost to wash themselves

The big package of Lux washes six weeks' dishes. Lovely hands for so small a price!

*Many beauty parlors use Lux in manicuring the nails, to soften and whiten the fingers.

Lux keeps lovely the hands

GIVEN CARFARE BY FOUR THUGS AFTER ROBBERY

East Liverpool Youths Searched at Point of Gun.

STRUCK IN FACE

DeWitt E. Webber and Leslie Cunningham Call Police.

Police today are searching for four youths who held up two East Liverpool newsboys at the point of a gun and robbed them of $3 in small change, returning them 42 cents for carfare back to the Pottery City and then escaping on foot. The holdup was staged at 9:30 o'clock last night in Park Place west at the corner of Ohio avenue, Midland's residential section.

DeWitt E. Webber, 21, of 359 Garfield street, and Leslie Cunningham, 15, of 131 Short street, were the victims.

The newsboys said they were followed for several blocks by two lads about 20 years old. At the intersection of Park Place west and Ohio avenue, two more youths joined the bandits. One of the youths flourished a .32 calibre revolver and demanded the newsboy's money. After taking their money, the thugs struck both Webber and Cunningham in the face and fled.

Newsboys immediately notified police, who combed the town for the suspects. Webber is the son of J. M. Webber, house moving contractor, and Cunningham is the son of Mrs. Lucy E. Cunningham, cook at the Travelers' hotel.

Why Brick is Highest-Value Pavement

By its very nature, by its construction and design, a brick pavement surface is peculiarly powerful in withstanding both weather and traffic damage.

It is subject to no chemical change—in laying, or after laying.

There is less chance for faulty construction.

Heat does not soften paving brick.

Tire chains will not lacerate it.

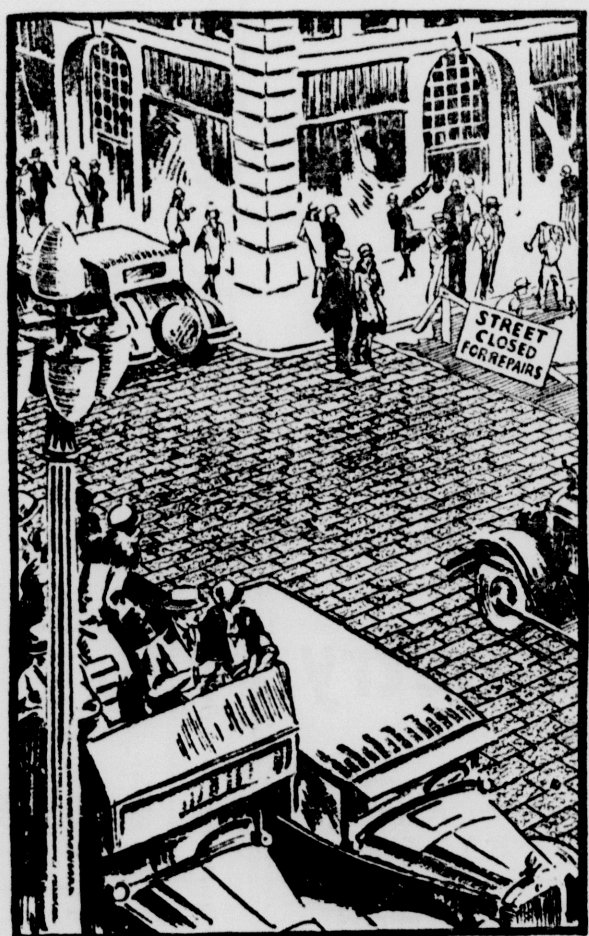

Laid on any good base, bound with asphalt between brick, it is a surface impervious to water. And it is a surface possessing sufficient resilience—

"give"—to take up the shocks of heavy-load traffic, or to accommodate natural contraction and expansion, without fractures or damage.

Add these facts to the easy-riding levelness of brick surface, to its beauty, and safety. And you see why brick is not only the highest-value pavement—the cheapest of all, as well!

"The A. B. C. of Good Paving," a taxpayer's manual, tells in words and pictures how engineers today build ever-wearing, low cost, brick surfaced roads and streets. Address your request to National Paving Brick Manufacturers Association, 332 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago.

TO THE MAN

who says—
"My family does not need a piano"

If your doctor prescribed a piano as an essential to your family's well-being, you would probably buy it today. And, incidentally, doctors have been known to write such prescriptions.

There was never a greater need for a piano in your home than there is today. The Piano is just as essential to the growing mind as exercise is to the growing body. Shouldn't your first concern be that of safeguarding your children's opportunities for social, material and moral progress?

No instrument ever invented by man has contributed as much to his progress as has the piano. Deep in your heart you must realize the need of something in your home that will be a constant inspiration to your growing children. This is a decision that you should not put off another day.

Children cannot choose for themselves. You must do so for them. Buy what you will, but consider the piano as one of the prime necessities in your home.

PASTORS SCORE 'CHEAP LAWYER' IN DIVORCES

"Shysters" are Hit by Moral Welfare Committee. EVIL CONDEMNED Oppose Publication of Suit Principals' Pictures.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25.—"Cheap, shyster lawyers" who are willing to rush a divorce through the courts in order to collect a fee were scored by the moral welfare committee of the Ohio pastors' convention in a session here today.

The committee considered a report of the chairman, Rev. Henry White, Youngstown, in which he recommended the principal methods of combating the divorce evil. One of these methods is a court of conciliation, to operate in connection with the county common pleas court. The other method was a law compelling publication of notices of divorce petitions filed.

People desiring a divorce would first appear before the court of conciliation and "air" their troubles, asking approval of their divorce and permission to carry it into the common pleas court. The court, Rev. White said, would not be a trial court.

The committee proposed a report for a law that would make it necessary for the filing of divorce petition to be accompanied by the photograph of the plaintiff and where possible a picture of the defendant. The latter part of this suggestion was not adopted on the grounds that too much publicity "smacks" of sensationalism. The committee recommended the rest of the report however and their report reads:

"Notice of the filing of petition in divorce shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation in each county and elsewhere, and that the same appear in a conspicuous place in such a newspaper."

FEED CHILDREN IN MINE ZONES

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 25.—Systematic feeding of destitute children in the Hocking Valley mining regions started today. J. O. Jantzen, General Frank Henderson announced. Under present plans, about 435 children will be given one good meal at school houses at the noon hour, Henderson said. It contributions of money and food permit, additional feeding will be provided for these school children, it was stated.

Cash donations, received at Ohio National Guard headquarters here, totaled about $3,300, it was announced at noon today. This amount did not include numerous pledges to contribute money.

General Henderson, who made a tour of inspection through the Hocking Valley Tuesday, accompanied by a number of Ohio National Guard officers and newspaper men, today stated that he was strongly "impressed by the urgent need for relief in that territory among children and expectant mothers."

COMB CAPE COD FOR SMITH GIRL

WOODS HOLE, Mass., Jan. 25.—Cape Cod, from the art colony cottages at Provincetown to the "presidential estates" at Buzzards bay and the Islands of Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket and the lesser isles off the southern New England coast, was combed today for some clue to the whereabouts of Miss Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith college freshman.

Four persons identified photographs of the missing New York City heiress as that of a girl who was in Buzzards bay and later took the train for Woods Hole last Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Smith had been a summer visitor at the estate of Charles R. Crane, Chicago millionaire, at Juniper Point, Woods Hole, and at the cottage of a school friend at Lambert's Cove, West Tisbury, on the north side of the island of Martha's Vineyard.

Carson denied the theft and was released. Boram later signed the larceny affidavit.

W. H. Johnson preferred the other charge.

FALL RECEIVED $394,000 FROM TWO OIL MEN

Unsecured "Loan" From Teapot Dome Lessee Revealed.

KIN ON STAND

Inquiry Directed Toward $1,000,000 in Bonds.

BY WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON. WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall stood revealed today as the recipient of at least $394,000 in cash and bonds from the two men to whom he leased the navy $100,000,000 naval oil reserves.

A new $36,000 unsecured "loan" from Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome, was revealed by M. T. Everhart, Fall's counsel, to establish the new total at the senate's new Teapot Dome inquiry. It previously included a $100,000 loan from E. L. Doheny, lessee of the Elk Hill reserve, secured by a personal note not yet repaid; a $233,000 payment from Sinclair for a third interest in Fall's New Mexico ranches, and a $25,000 fee from Sinclair for an oil trip to Russia.

The investigation, to be resumed this afternoon, was directed toward learning what became of the $3,000,000 in Liberty bonds, purchased by a group of oil men with profits of the Continental Trading company, of Canada. It was previously shown that $230,500 of these bonds were placed to Fall's credit in a Pueblo, Colo., bank and Everhart revealed that they came direct from Sinclair.

The inquiry today, however, was directed at finding out what H. M. Backmer, former chairman of the Midwest Refining company, did with $1,000,000 in Liberty bonds, reported to have gone to him out of the Continental company's profits.

Senator Walsh Satisfied. A. C. Downing, secretary of the New York Trust company, was to resume the stand on Backmer's angle of the oil case. He was armed with the static copies of his bank's records, showing what bonds had been sold to Backmer, who fled the country several years ago to escape testifying in the oil cases.

Senator J. Walsh (D.) of Montana, appeared very much interested in one particular Liberty bond, numbered 566,135. He did not reveal the significance of the bond.

Senator Walsh said he was well satisfied with Everhart's testimony. Fall's counsel-lawyer not only revealed the new "loan" from Sinclair but told of a complicated business deal by which Sinclair paid over $233,000 in Liberty bonds to Fall. This portion of his testimony showed for the first time that Sinclair was in possession of the Continental company's bonds, something which the government sought in vain to prove at the oil conspiracy trial.

This payment, Everhart testified, was for a third interest in Fall's ranch properties. Everhart said a new company was organized to control the properties in which Sinclair was given a third interest for the $233,000 but that the stock was issued in his (Everhart's) name. The witness said that Fall took $2,500 in bonds personally and that the remainder, $230,500, was deposited in the Pueblo, Colo., bank and used later to pay off debts against Fall's properties.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Not since the forced reduction of the Chicago rediscount rate last fall has the opening of the stock market been awaited with so great interest as today. Announcement having been made, at the close of yesterday's market, of the increase in the Chicago rate to 4 per cent, traders naturally looked to the stock market for the "street's" interpretation of that change. Opening prices of the market leaders were from 1 to 3 points lower, but rallies during the first hour restored about half of the early losses.

Because of the fact that the directors of the Chicago reserve bank have always been opposed to the reduction of the rediscount rate to 3 1/2 per cent, and have frequently urged the restoration of the 4 per cent rate, the argument of a "reserve board brake on speculation," etc. lost most of its force in the Wall Street district. There was no indication of a stamped to "throw stocks overboard" at whatever prices they would bring, and the bearish professionals who looked for a harvest found comparatively little stock for sale at the low levels.

General Motors, opening at 133 to 134, advanced to above 135 before the end of the first hour. Gold dust, another speculative favorite of the week, declined about 2 points at the opening, but promptly rushed up 7 points to 95, where it showed a gain of 2 points above Tuesday's close. United States Steel recovered a point at 147, and similar gains were made by a number of the well-known steel, motor and utility shares. Rails and oils were inactive but steady.

A Thrilling Story of the Night Clubs
By Phillip Dunning and George Abbott.

CHAPTER 9.

Crandall lit a cigarette. For a moment the glow of the patent lighter brought out the clean-cut line of his nose; gleamed in his eyes. The mystery of him frightened Billie then. What did she know about him? Nothing. What did she know about Dolf something-or-other on the front seat, driving her down Seventh Avenue toward an unknown place in the Village? Nothing! Life in New York was strange. You did things here that you never would think of doing other places—in Trenton, New Jersey, for instance. Maybe that was because everything was so upside down. Night was turned into day here; day into night—Oh, well—what was Mr. Crandall saying?

"What, Mr. Crandall?"
"Wake up, cute fella. It ain't a compliment to me when you go to sleep."
"I wasn't asleep, honest."
"Wasn't you?"
"No."

He moved closer to her. "I was asking you if you had that rehearsal to-day?"

"Yes, but only for about an hour."
His voice lowered and had a thrilling, romantic ring to it. His lips were close to her cheek. "Don't worry about nothin', little girl. If the act don't turn out, I'm here, all the time, see?"
"Yes."

"I wouldn't take too much stock in that Lane guy, if I was you. He's a lot of wind. It's that way with most of them second rate hoofers."

Billie felt she must defend Roy Lane. "He's—he's been awful nice to me," she said weakly.

"Sure, he has. An' why not? But I can be nicer, little fella."

The Buick slowed down on a side street, east of Seventh Avenue. Billie didn't know where she was. She wasn't familiar with the Village. The street lamps were pale white bubbles.

Crandall helped Billie out; spoke a few low, indistinct words to the alert little Dolf who remained on the front seat. Again Billie heard, "Sure, Steve," and again she was disturbed. Dolf's sharp white teeth, like the teeth of an animal, gleamed for a moment. He drove away.

Crandall took Billie down a flight of stairs that led to a grated iron door below the level of the sidewalk. He rang a bell, and after a few moments, the dark face of an Italian appeared at the grating. He peered out, searchingly.

"Hello, Joe," greeted Steve Crandall.
The Italian's face broke into smiles. In haste the door was open, just as if a king had spoken. The Italian bowed, obsequiously.

"Glad to see you, Mr. Crandall."
Checking his coat and hat in a narrow stuffy hall without much illumination, Steve escorted Billie into a plain, dimly-lit room, thick with tobacco smoke and the odor of claret and heavy, Italian food. Joe had preceded them and beckoned them to a little table for two in a dark corner.

Billie remembered that she hadn't eaten any breakfast, and the smell of the food delighted her. She sat down, wriggling from her coat and letting it slip to the back of the chair. Crandall ordered with the authority of an epicurean. The voice of Broadway was shut out of here too. It seemed very quiet in this intimate room with only the lowered conversation of couples at nearby tables and the soft tread of waiters.

A pretty Italian girl came in with small bouquets of pink baby roses for sale. Crandall bought two bunches and Billie pinned them at her waist.

"They ain't near as pretty as your cheeks, little one," he said, looking at her, intently.

"Now don't kid," she returned.

They had a cocktail first and then red wine with the meal. Billie became aware that she was allowing Steve to hold her hand across the table. She flushed and drew it away. She did such silly things after she had had a few glasses. No, she mustn't allow Crandall to hold her hand, even though he did do it quite like a father, sort of patting it, you know.

"What's the matter, kittens?"

"Nothin', Steve—Mr. Crandall—"

"Yes, there is. Why take away your hand? 'Fraid of me?"

"No."

"Well, then—"

She changed the subject before he could involve her, talking hastily about her room-mate, Mazie Smith. Mazie said such funny things. "You oughter hear her tell a corn story, Mr. Crandall. She's a riot!"

"Tell it to me," he invited.

"Oh, I couldn't, like her."

"Oh, yes, you can." Crandall smiled, slowly, calmly.

And then she was aware of some one entering like a wraith out of the cigarette smoke and the darkness, some one who walked quickly and tread lightly—some one wiry and slinky like a cat. It was that mysterious Dolf.

He leaned over Crandall and spoke through the side of his mouth. Crandall rose, his face serious. "Excuse me just a minute, Billie. I'll be right back."

"Is anything the matter?" she asked anxiously.

"Not a thing, girly. Just a little matter of business. Drink your coffee an' I'll be right back."

He went away with Dolf, — disappeared in a back room.

What did this all mean? Billie became afraid again. She thought of all sorts of impossible things that might be happening. They were gone for ages and ages. Maybe Dolf had cut his master's throat for his money, or maybe Crandall had cut Dolf's throat?

Surely they'd been away for hours by now. She looked at the little wrist watch that Mary and her mother had given her for Christmas. Poor Mother and Mary. What would they think of her now if they could smell the wine on her breath? Gee, this was no way to be thinking, but why didn't Crandall come back? She'd be late at the Paradise. Oh, Lord! She propped up her chin in her cupped hands and sighed. A man across the way heard her sigh and grinned at her. She turned away.

Crandall returned without Dolf. He was as clean as ever; apologized for being gone so long, but business was business; lit a long oily, heavily fragrant cigar.

"I'll be late, Mr. Crandall, if we do hurry," said Billie.

"Oh, no we won't. I'm watching the time."

"Click! he made."

"Not when I'm with you." He helped her with her coat. "There you are."

They returned to the roaring forties in a taxi instead of the Buick. Crandall did not mention what had happened to Dolf.

"I got close to Billie and spoke low and intently. 'There has been a great evenin', little fella.'"

"Yes."

"Don't you think so?"

"Oh."

"We'll have lots more, won't we?"

"I-I hope so," breathed Billie.

"Of course we will," said Crandall. "Call me Steve from now on, will you?"

"Well—maybe."

"What you 'fraid of? I ain't gonna eat you or nothin'."

"I—know, but—"

"Well, then—"

"Maybe," she said, looking out at the never-ceasing traffic and listening to its constant roar.

SHERIFF BANS "ONE-EYED" AUTO

SAN JOSE, CAL., EDITOR DIES

SAN JOSE, Cal., Jan. 25.—Arthur L. Clark, managing editor of the San Jose Mercury-Herald, is dead here today at the age of 58.

He was formerly editor-in-chief of the Boston American and managing editor of the New York World. Death followed a prolonged illness.

HAVANA PARLEY COMMISSIONS SPEED UP WORK

Informal Conversations at Pan-American Conference.

UNION IS GOAL
Eight Different Units Consider Phases of Program.

HAVANA, Jan. 25.—International leaders in the sixth Pan-American conference got together in a series of informal conversations today in an effort to speed up the work of the conference.

Eight different commissions are considering the various phases of the conference program.

Four of the commissions meet on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The other four meet on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. The schedule calls for two meetings each morning and two meetings each afternoon all at different hours.

The result has been that each commission has been compelled to shorten its deliberations in order that its members who may be serving on another commission may proceed to the meeting of that group.

The large delegation from the United States permits the assignment of members to different commissions; but, where there are only two delegates representing a nation, the life of each is one continuous round of commissions.

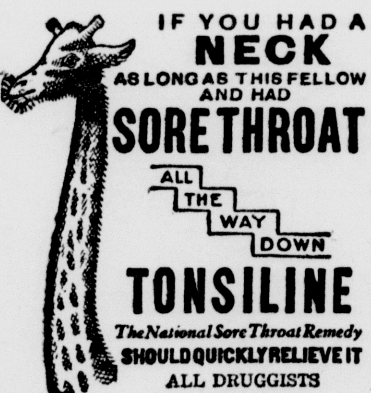

Two methods will be used to expedite matters. First, as much work as possible will be done outside the meetings of the commissions in order that the sessions themselves may be devoted largely to putting the finishing touches to agreements already reached. Second, pressure will be put on the less important commissions to conclude their work in order that all attention may be concentrated on the more important duties of the conference.

A special effort was made today to speed up the organization of the Pan-American Union as the central instrument of Pan-Americans. It is hoped to get this matter out of the way by next week.

DOGGONE GOOD STORY FOR DOG

Homeless dogs are in demand in Columbiana county, according to County Dog Warden C. E. Donahay.

Donahay recently offered an unlicensed dog to any one who would provide the canine with a home and pay the license fee. Twenty-five persons applied.

One of the applicants was Donald W. McCoy, 11-year-old Salem newsboy who wanted the dog "for company" while he passed his papers. The canine was given to Fred Emney, High and Highland avenues, Salem.

"Some of these days I'm going to get Donald a dog—one that will be a real companion," said Donahay.

Mother of Former Russian Czar Gets Last Photograph

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 25.—The Dowager Empress of Russia who is now spending her last sad years in the Villa Hvidovre, near this capital, has just received the last photograph taken of her son, the Czar Nicholas II.

It was taken by Mr. Gollman, a photographer who happened to be in Russia at the outbreak of the Revolution. He was authorized to visit the Czar a short time before his murder and took this photograph. It was naturally with some difficulty that he succeeded in passing the custom officials with it. The Empress has added it to the already large collection of photos of her unfortunate son and family.

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

BOBBED

It is estimated that 3,400 tons of hair have been cut off women's heads since the bobbed hair fad began. It is further estimated that there are 14,000,000 bobbed heads in the United States. An think of all the conversation and argument and debate that have been wasted on what is after all a trivial matter.

Analyze modern thought and the subjects which most engage men's minds and we are forced to the sad conclusion that most of our time is given to odds and ends of no great significance.

THE BEAUTY CHASE

Beauty crowds old age right up to the edge of the grave. American women, according to Gertrude Lane, editor of the Woman's Home Companion, spend a billion eight hundred million a year in the pursuit of beauty. That amount of money is equivalent to the entire debt which the ten smaller nations of Europe owe the United States. Well, most women get very good results in this chase for beauty, and the money invested has much to do with making a happier and more livable world.

LITTLE THINKING AHEAD

A Chicago preacher is crusading for a new law which will make divorce much more difficult to get. He says this will curb hasty and thoughtless marriages. He shows little knowledge of the habits of the average human. Men and women in the mood for marriage do not think things through. They do not think far ahead. They act on impulse. They always have and always will. The ease or difficulty of divorce does not interest two people in love. The world is not yet rational to any large degree. We are still mostly concerned, in a totally irrational manner, in getting what we want when we want it.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Speaking of "thinging things through," the argument is urged that if capital punishment were abolished murder would be increased. The fact is that in states which have no capital punishment crime is not more prevalent than elsewhere. Men and women about to commit crime do not think things through. They are not in the mood for weighing facts. They are swayed by powerful impulses. Later, in jail, they have much time for thought. The fact that capital punishment may be or may not be at the end of the road probably receives much less thought than we commonly suppose.

Sage Tea Dandy to Darken Hair

By DOROTHY LANG

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. It costs only 75 cents. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

Dempsey Prepares To Put 'The Bee' On Tex For Tunney Bout

More Dough Is Sought by Ex-Champion

Jack Will Ask $300,000 For Next Title Battle.

By Davis J. Walsh.
NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Jack Dempsey, the well known husband, today started the unpleasant but altogether necessary operation of putting what is known as "the slug" upon his best pal and least severe critic, George Lockhart. It may be explained that this will be unpleasant only to Rickard and is regarded as necessary only by Dempsey. Just to get the records straight and the adjectives distributed appropriately.
Some persons, of coarser mold and baser instincts, prefer to know this process as "the bee," but I am for elegance and refinement in dictation and strict accuracy in the presentation of the printed word. Tex Rickard is not to be bitten by a small insect. He is to be slugged by a big mammal and the latter can go right ahead and slug him if he wants to.
Will Tell Tex Soon.
Anyhow, I happen to know that Dempsey wants a $300,000 guarantee for his next fight with Tunney and today he prepared to apprise Rickard of the good tidings by telling his New York representative that he was far from certain he would come back. The writer incidentally is disposed to concur with that idea; in fact, he is somewhat ahead of it. He is far from certain that Dempsey will come back even after he comes back, the first referring to matters artistic and the second to matters merely gesticular.
Dempsey got only $175,000 by way of a guarantee at the Chicago fight, a fact that may not generally be known. However, this was of comparative unimportance at that time because everyone knew that highly critical money was to pile up in the vestibule and that Dempsey would get his share of it. But they are talking now of holding the fight in New York and, with a 90,000 capacity in the offing, the question of a guarantee is about as unimportant as a punch on the nose.
The Dempsey message, which probably will be relayed to Rickard at Miami, is that he had been working but had ceased, as we say at the blacksmith's, because he contracted a cold and didn't really know why a sane man should work, anyhow. As I get it, our John isn't quite sure whether he doesn't choose to fight or maybe it is that he is too proud to run.
Would Hurry Rickard.
If he wants any help about it, I will volunteer to say that he plans to hurry Rickard, already disturbed by Sharkey's failure and the lack of a definite contender, into making him an offer that will send him away from the fight with almost as much money as Tunney, the other financial genius, will get.
AT MILWAUKEE.—Bud Taylor, world's bantamweight champion, knocked out Phil Zwick of Cleveland, second round.

Midland High Quint Defeated by Monaca

Lincoln Five Shows Effects of 10-day Loaf in 29-18 Reversal; Samuels, Glumac Star.

Showing effects of their 10-day loaf during examinations and between semesters, Lincoln high's varsity quint went into action last night in the Midland gym and received a 29-18 defeat at the hands of Monaca high.
Monaca took an early lead and maintained it. At the half time the score was 13-6, Monaca, and by the end of the third quarter it stood 10-13, but with the Blue and Gold making valiant efforts to forge ahead.
In the last period when the Midlanders came within a couple of hoops of their up-river opponents, the Monacans suddenly stopped missing shots and landed four scoring hoops before Midland got back on its feet.
Samuels, outstanding floor man of the Midland midjet combination, played a brilliant game of ball. Glumac, who was high scorer for Midland, and George Sufletto also showed well for the Blue and Gold.

SPORT NEWS AND VIEWS

By the Sports Editor.

By virtue of his survival of a recent wholesale "cut" by Freshman coaches, Richard "Dick" Larkins, of East Liverpool, is now a member of the first-string basketball team of the Freshman class at Ohio State University.
Larkins, in workouts on the Scarlet and Gray court in Columbus, gave the yearling mentors an exhibition of the ability that made him one of the most proficient defense men turned out here in recent years.
That Dick had, and has, plenty of confidence, was indicated here last spring when the ex-high school athlete lined up with the Elks of the county amateur league for a game with Jim Thorpe's Indians. Thorpe came tearing down the floor like he was making one of his famous end runs, right into Larkins' territory. Dick didn't retreat. He dove into Thorpe and the ball and the two tangled. The big Indian smiled as the referee hoisted the leather in the air between them.
Larkins was included in a list recently published at the university of a group of Freshmen eagles who will not be permitted to play with any other team beside the yearling five this year. In other words, all of their work will be centered on the one squad.
Only 13 Freshmen survived the latest cut of the coaches. Larkins won a guard berth. He has played in several games against the varsity this season in that position. Should his work on the team continue to prove satisfactory, Larkins will, in all probability, be awarded his class number for his services. The East Liverpool lad has already won one set of national letters this year, having been regular center on the first year eleven last fall.

COLUMBIANA County Amateur Basketball League Teams Should Feel the Influence of the Clergy

There are two ministers at present who are enrolled as regular players on teams of the county cage circuit. Rev. Red Wilson, pastor of the Salineville United Presbyterian church, is a member of Tom Cartwright's Salineville Kiwanians. He plays a great game at forward. Rev. Harold P. Post, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Wellsville, plays a forward for the Wellsville Elks. A no little comment was heard on his performance in the Wellsville-Salineville game recently.
EAST LIVERPOOL will not be represented in the Ohio-Pennsylvania Baseball league this summer. The league formerly organized, after several weeks of fishing for suitable entries, Sunday in Canton, with six clubs in the fold and the re-election of William Strang, Canton newspaperman, as president.
The league membership includes Massillon, Beaver Falls, Canton, Warren, New Castle and Cleveland Tullings.
Strang, Secretary Dick Novaro, of Cleveland, and other baseball men interested in the circuit, tried hard to interest East Liverpool in the league, but conditions here, especially in regard to Sunday baseball, are not auspicious for league baseball of that particular type.
The high grade performance of the Chester Superior Cords against the Beaver Falls Elks last summer interested Ed Harvey in the West Virginians and it was largely through his efforts that league officials went after Manager Frank Riley.
Riley, Joe Dickey and Pearl Dalley at Newell, or John Fowler and Mike Turk of Turk Nash undoubtedly could have put a strong club in the league had there been a diamond here suitable for such a purpose.
The O. & P. circuit will play a schedule of about 50 games, with contests billed on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays, opening on or about May 1.

CHARLES HYATT, sensational Sophomore forward of the University of Pittsburgh basketball team, has tossed in 59 field goals and 51 free throws for a total of 139 points in nine games to date on the Panther schedule, all of which were won by the Pennsylvania team.

RAY MITCHELL ON F. O. E. CARD

Here's Ray Mitchell, East Liverpool welterweight, who tackles Young Jenkins, Weirton flash, in one of the four-round prelim bouts on the Eagles' fight program tomorrow night.
Mitchell, who has been idle except for training activities, since his return from Akron some time ago, expects to display a wallop with sufficient strength to polish off the West Virginian as a means of making a fitting comeback debut.
Some of the boys are counting on plenty of action in this setto and Mitchell asserts that as far as he's concerned, he'll not disappoint them.

Kimm Takes Ryan's Place On F.O.E. Bill

Boylestein's Foe Injures Hand in Training Session.

Matchmaker Tom McDonough, in charge of arrangements for the Eagles' fight, today announced a change in the semi-final lineup.
Receiving a wire early yesterday to the effect that Joe "Boo" Ryan, of Pittsburgh, had "busted a mitt," or something to that effect, McDonough immediately got in touch with Harry Sully, manager of Bill Kimm, Columbus lightweight, and signed the Ohioan for semi-finals duties.
McDonough saw Kimm work recently in Steubenville against Johnny Bass. The Columbus puncher took Bass' measure in three rounds and revealed in that bout, at least, that he knew how to wallop.
As a result, Kimm will go into the ring against Boylestein on Thursday night. While Boylestein has been scrapping in the ranks of the lighties for a number of years, he has added some poundage, according to Manager "Jock" McDonald, and is nearing the welter division.
U. S. Carpenter, Pittsburgh, and Johnny Kusie, Philadelphia, meet in the eight-round final; Ray Mitchell, East Liverpool, and Young Jenkins Weirton, in the second four-rounder on the program; and Sharkey Wolfe, East Liverpool, and Kid Francis, Wellsville, in the four-round curtain raiser. of any played in the conference to date. More than mere conference honors were at stake. It was a contest for the supremacy of Indiana, a state that takes its basketball seriously.
The fives battled neck and neck all the way. Purdue led at the half by only one point, 12 to 11.
Kemmer and Cummins led the Boilermakers attack. McCracken, Wells and Strickland starred for the Hoosiers. Beckner star forward, who graduates at the end of this semester, played his final game for Indiana.
Upwards of 4,000 fans, all that Memorial gymnasium could hold, witnessed the stirring contest.
AT LOS ANGELES—Mike Watters, local junior lightweight, was awarded the decision over "Baby Sal" Sorlo, 10 rounds.

Purdue "Cock of the Walk" in Big 10 Circles; Beats Indiana

Boilermakers Retain Perfect Record by Stopping Hoosier Rivals, 28 to 25.

AFAYETTE, Ind., Jan. 25.—Purdue was still "cock of the walk" in Big Ten basketball circles today following a sensational championship duel with Indiana here last night.
The Boilermakers won, 28 to 25, thereby retaining the Big Ten lead and keeping their record clear of defeats. With three straight victories, they are the only team in the conference that has not yet tasted defeat.
Indiana dropped to fourth place, having won three games and lost two. This game between the rival Hoosier institutions was the hardest fought

CHAPTER XVII.

In warm weather these suits acquired an odor similar to that of a goat which has been in the barn all winter and the fur itself was far from comfortable. On the trip back a piston froze in the engine. For two days the cadet was alternately roasting in the southern sun and freezing in the Texas nights while he guarded his ship and waited for a new engine.

After our return from Galveston while we were practicing formation attack on two seaters, I experienced one of the incidents of the military pilot's life. I made my first emergency parachute jump. When an Army plane crashes, the pilot is required to write a detailed report of the crash. My account was as follows:

"A nine-ship SE-5 formation, commanded by Lieutenant Blackburn, was attacking a DH-4B, flown by Lieutenant Maughan at about a 5,000 foot altitude and several hundred feet above the clouds. I was flying on the left of the top unit, Lieutenant McAllister on my right, and Cadet Love leading. When we nosed down on the DH, I attacked from the left and Lieutenant McAllister from the right. After Cadet Love pulled up, I continued to dive on the DH for a short time before pulling up to the left. I saw no other ship nearby.

"I passed above the DH and a moment later felt a slight jolt, followed by a crash. My head was thrown forward against the cowl and my plane seemed to turn around and hang nearly motionless for an instant. I closed the throttle and saw the SE-5 with Lieutenant McAllister in the cockpit a few feet on my left. He was apparently unhurt and getting ready to jump.

"Our ships were locked together with the fuselages approximately parallel. My right wing was damaged and had folded back slightly, covering the forward right-hand corner of the cockpit. Then the ships started to mill around and the wires began whistling. The right wing commenced vibrating and striking my head at the bottom of each oscillation. I removed the rubber band fastening the belt, unbuckled it, climbed out past the trailing edge of the damaged wing, and with my feet on the cowl on the right side of the cockpit, which was then in a nearly vertical position, jumped backward, as far from the ship as possible. I had no difficulty in locating the pulling and experienced no sensation of falling. The wreckage was falling nearly straight down and for some time I fell in line with its path and only slightly to one side. Fearing the wreckage might fall on me, I did not pull the rip cord until I dropped several hundred feet and into the clouds. During this time I had turned one-half revolution and was falling flat and face downward. The parachute functioned perfectly; almost as soon as I pulled the rip cord the riser perked on my shoulders, the leg straps tightened, my head went down, and the chute fully opened.

"I saw Lieutenant McAllister floating above me and the wrecked ships passed about 100 yards to one side, continuing to spin to the right and leaving a trail of lighter fragments along their path. I watched them until, still locked together, they crashed in the mesquite about 2,000 feet below and burst into flames several seconds after impact.

"Next I turned my attention to locating a landing place. I was over mesquite and drifting in the general direction of a plowed field which I reached by slipping the chute. Shortly before striking the ground, I was drifting backwards, but was able to swing around in the harness just as I landed on the side of a ditch less than 100 feet from the edge of the mesquite. Although the impact of landing was too great for me to remain standing, I was not injured in any way. The parachute was still held open by the wind and did not collapse until I pulled in one group of shroud lines.

"During my descent I lost my goggles, a vest pocket camera which fit-

WHY YOUR STOMACH GRUMBLES

Your stomach "grumbles" because it tries to tell you it is out of order. Heed its warning, for although the trouble may not yet be serious, it is often the forerunner of severe gastritis and stomach ulcers.

Nine times out of ten indigestion and allied stomach disorders are due to excess stomach acid, which impedes normal digestion and forms sour gases that cause intense pain. To restore good digestion you must eliminate this cause. A tablet of "Pape's Diapepsin" after eating or when pain is felt will instantly neutralize the acidity and banish all digestive trouble and pain. Get a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapepsin" today, for it not only brings instant relief, but by soothing, healing and strengthening your weak and disordered stomach "Pape's Diapepsin" keeps your digestive system healthy and helps to prevent further disorders.

"Christ at the Door"

East End Meet Topic

Rev. G. L. C. Richardson Preaches at Union Revival Services at Penn Avenue Methodist Church.

Owing to installation ceremonies at the Second United Presbyterian church, only members of the Second Presbyterian and Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal churches attended union revival services at the latter church last night.

Rev. G. L. C. Richardson, Tarentum, Pa., who is assisting in this week's series of meetings, used the subject, "Christ at the Door," for his discourse. Notwithstanding the adverse weather conditions the service was well attended.

The song service was conducted by Rev. G. C. Westlake pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue church. Rev. Frederick A. Dean, D. D., pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, reported results of the cottage prayer services and announced home meetings. There was a large response to the altar call.

Dr. Richardson will preach tonight on "Making the Cross of Christ of No Effect."

In his sermon last night Rev. Mr. Richardson said:

"Think who is standing at the door. It is Christ, the Lord, the King of heaven, the One who came to seek and to save that which was lost; He could force an entrance into every heart that is closed against Him, but that is not Christ's way of getting into hearts. He never coerces, never forces, any one against his will; He invites. He woos by His Spirit. He says: 'Come unto me and I will give you rest.'"

"History records the fact, that when Mohammed started out to establish his religion over the earth, he took in his hand a sword and gathered about him soldiers, and where the people refused to heed or to follow, he fell upon them with his sword or put them to death. By force he built up a following.

"But when Jesus came his only weapon was the sword of the spirit, and his only soldiers were the few fisherfolk whom he called to follow him. The only compulsion Jesus ever used was the compulsion of a holy love.

"Jesus stands tonight at the door of your heart and knocks. His attitude toward you is:

"First, the attitude of accessibility. He is 'at the door.' You do not need to ascend into heaven to bring him down, nor go down into the depths to bring him up; nor do you need to take the wings of the morning and fly to the uttermost parts of the earth to search for him. For if that were not true there would be those who would not have a chance to be saved. There are times when we need an immediate Saviour, one who is near at hand and who will hear us when we call upon Him. He can hear the softest whisper that falls from the lips of the truly penitent soul. He will hear you when you call, be sure of that.

"Second, the attitude of patience. How long He has been kept standing outside the fast closed door! If you had treated your earthly friends as you have treated your Savior, they would never come back to your door. How do you treat them? Why do you open the door whenever they knock and invite them to come in, and you do so with all the courtesy of which you are capable.

"Jesus stand and knocks and He says, 'Let me in and I will do you good.' And what do we do? We hold the door and refuse Him admission. The wonder is that he still stands. Why does He persist in standing so long at the door that is closed and barred against Him? Because, it is in the hope that you and I will ere long come to our senses and cease our foolishness and let him in.

"Third, the attitude of readiness to depart. Jesus is standing and standing is always the attitude of readiness to depart. God says: 'My spirit shall not always strive with man.' Every time you refuse admission to Jesus, you make it that much harder to yield, you harden your heart and stiffen your neck, and set yourself against doing what you know you ought. It makes you ready to be an easy mark of the enemy of your soul. 'There is danger and death in delay. Procrastination is the thief of time. Beware! Let the Savior come in.'

Home-made Remedy Stops Cough Quickly

Finest cough medicine you ever used. Family supply easily made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup, or clarified honey. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed passages that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. "Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded." The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.
